Thompson, Rhodes Voices from Cane Ridge. St. Louis, Mo.: Bethany Press, 1954. Although Cane Ridge is just outside the mountain region, the revivalism movement in the United States was an Appalachian phenomenon. Here, in the mountain, frontier culture met and clashed with the too formal religion of the East. It was the mountaineer who caused established religion to despair and brought on the revival movement.

Introduction

The purpose of this work is to make available information on a variety of films and video tapes on Appalachian studies. This filmography is by no means complete, but it can be of value to the Appalachian researcher as a starting point. Subjects covered include history, music, folklore, arts and crafts, religion, festivals, and the environment.

The material is divided into three sections:

I) A collection of 16mm movies and documentaries listed in alphabetical order. Each listing is provided with information concerning length, color or black and white, a description, awards when given, and distributor. An addendum of 16mm films by source brings the filmography up to date of publication and follows the earlier alphabetical listing.

II) A complete listing of all film distributors with their addresses.

III) A section on video tapes with name and address of distributors at the end of each listing.

No attempt has been made to evaluate the quality of the films and video tapes either in terms of technique or content.

92. Strip Mine Trip Color 12min 1962
"Shows fifteen miles of Kentucky land that has been devastated by strip mining. Includes the comments of mine operators and citizens about the stripping operations."
Distributor—Churchill Films

93. Stripmining in Appalachia B&W 25min 1973
A film about Appalachia's most controversial problem. Stripmining in Appalachia speaks with the voices of and for the powerless little man caught up in the jaws of a cancerous industrial process. The film speaks of the beauty of the mountains, the humanity of the people, and the attitudes of the stripmine operators. Aerial photography is used to enhance a local biologist's scientific explanation of what stripmining does to the land.
Distributor—Appalshop

94. The Stripping of Appalachia Color 30min
This is an excellent film by a British firm which shows the strip mining of the British land company, the American Association, in Claiborne and Campbell Counties in Tennessee.
"I think the film is good to educate people about strip mining with," said Elmer Rasnick, chairman of Citizens for Social and Economic Justice. "It has all points of view. They go from the people directly affected, to the mine site with the operator, and finally to England to talk with the landowners. I doubt if many of the people right there in Tennessee knew that the company that was doing all the stripping was from England . . . just letting the people know that is reason enough to show the film all around."
Distributor—Council of the Southern Mountains

95. The Struggle of Coon Branch Mountain B&W 13min 1972
In their efforts to better their children's education, the residents of this small West Virginia community find themselves face to face with an unfeeling and bureaucratic political structure. The film follows their fight for better roads and schools through the first community meeting, a march on the governors' office, to a partial victory and determination to continue their struggle.
Distributor—Appalshop

96. Tennessee Holiday Color 30min
Visits Tennessee and features the Cherokees, TVA, Oak Ridge and Cumberland Gap.
Distributor—Modern Talking Picture Service

97. Tennessee River Color 14min 1971

Story of Todd, a boy of a poor Appalachian family who finds a purse full of food stamps. Reveals Todd's character by showing his actions upon seeing the owner's name in the purse. From the Many Americans Series.
Distributor—Learning Corporation of America

104. Tomorrow's People Color 25min 1973
This is a presentation of mountain music—a sight and sound experience of mountain culture without narration. A visual montage of old time photographs accompanies the dulcimer sequence, while the central portion of the film turns loose to the banjo and fiddle to render "Fox Chase" by Coy Morton. The film ends with a rousing square dance in a one room schoolhouse high on a mountaintop.
Distributor—Appalshop

105. Tradition Color 20min 1974
Moonshining is regarded as one of the strongest traditions in the mountains. Though the number steadily decreases, there are still mountaineers who "had rather make moonshine than go on welfare." In this film, a moonshiner tells what it's like to have been "sent up" four times for making liquor, while IRS agents relate tales of tracking down stills and arresting moonshiners.
Awards: Sinking Creek Film Celebration Honorable Mention 1974
Distributor—Appalshop

106. Trail of Tears B&W 100min
This film is a study of the removal of the Cherokee Indians from their mountain homeland in North Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia under the direction of Andrew Jackson. This film is narrated by Johnny Cash.
Distributor—NET Film Service

107. Trail of the Lonesome Pine Color 102 min 1936
Two feuding families in the primitive mountains of Virginia find their way of life threatened by the construction of a railroad. A moving and uncompromising climax concludes this film which is notable as the first outdoor film made in color.
Distributor—Universal/16

108. UMWA 1970: A House Divided B&W 15min 1971
This portrait of W.A. (Tony) Boyle, filmed two years before the rank and file UMW rejected him, records his speech at a Miners' rally. Intercut with scenes of dissident miners, the film contrasts Boyle's statements with those of the anti-Boyle faction to expose the weaknesses of the union under Boyle's leadership.
"A first rate film that captures the real spirit of rank and file coal miners fighting to clean up their union. It's the kind of film only people who lived with that struggle day in and day out could have made."
Don Stillman, Director of Publications
UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA

109. Valley of Darkness Color 18min 1970
Presents the employment problems of young West Virginia men who must work in the mines and risk black lung and cave-ins. Also shows the conflict between attempting to raise the children out of the coal camps and economic pressures brought to bear by the coal companies.
Distributor—NBC-TV

110. A Walk in the Spring Rain Color 100min
The story of a woman—the wife of a New York City professor, on sabbatical in the Tennessee mountains. She meets and falls in love with a giant of a country man. The film deals with the growth and maturing of their love amid the background of the Great Smoky Mountains. Ingrid Bergman and Anthony Quinn play the lead roles in this film—shot on location in Knoxville, Tennessee.
Distributor-Swank Motion Pictures, Inc.

111. West Virginia, Land for Relaxation Color 14min 1962
Portrays a trip through West Virginia, showing scenic, recreational, and historic features.
Distributor—Ellis Dungan Productions

112. Whitesburg Epic B&W 10min 1970
This film made in the spring of 1970, is a series of interviews on the streets of Whitesburg. Opinions on the war in Vietnam, Kent State, college unrest, the draft, and recreation are voiced by the residents of this small eastern Kentucky town. One of the Appalshop's earliest films, it speaks clearly about the problems faced by young people in Appalachia in the early seventies.
Distributor—Appalshop

113. The Wilderness Road B&W 23min 1953
Follows Daniel Boone and other pioneers who carved out the wilderness road from North Carolina to Kentucky. Describes their explorations, fight for independence, and settlement of the frontier country.
Distributor—Virginia Department of Education

114. Woodrow Cornett: Letcher County Butcher B&W 10min 1970
The film follows Woodrow Cornett as he goes through the intricate process of butchering a hog. Narrated by Frank Majority, with harmonica and humor, by Ashland Fouts, it is a portrait of a man and his work, and a look at the mountain custom of hog butchering performed by a master at the craft.
"WOODROW CORNETT: LETCHER CO. BUTCHER is a simply fascinating ten minute picture, the first one the workshop made, telling how one man makes a living butchering hogs and steer . . . I cannot convey in words how interesting this film is, made even more so by the harmonica musical background, performed by one old timer, Ashland Fouts, that gives to this documentary much meaning."
Awards: Sinking Creek Film Celebration 1972, UT Film Festival, Robert Flaherty Film Seminar 1973, D. W. Griffith Film Festival, Temple University Anthropological and Documentary Film Conference, Museum of Modern Art, Yale Film Society
Distributor—Appalshop

Indiana University Audio Visual Center

1. And So They Live B&W 26min 16mm
Documents the tragic poverty of families in the southern mountains, the poor land, the lack of proper diet, inadequate housing, absence of sanitation, and the complete lack of adaptation of the school program to the local situation.

2. Audubon Color 58min 16mm
Traces the travels of John J. Audubon (1785–1851) who classified birds in America and Europe. Recounts Audubon's warning that many species of birds would become extinct when the forest was cut, and that he foresaw the depletion of wild bison in America.

3. Flatboatmen of the Frontier (Ohio Valley Farmers: 1790–1820) B&W 11min 16mm
Shows that the early settlers of the Ohio Valley were "farmer boatmen" through their dependence on the soil for livelihood and on the rivers for transportation. Includes the valley agricultural economy, frontier homes, and domestic activities, flatboat building and loading, the trip down-river to market, frontier personalities, speech, and music.

4. Geography of the Southern States Color 11min 16mm
Depicts the basic geographic elements of climate and soil in the southern states, as related to the human activities of history, invention, change, new methods, and new attitudes.

5. Hunger in America Color 51min 16mm
Presents evidence that 10,000,000 Americans go to bed hungry every night from "gut hunger" accompanied by malnutrition and starvation and not simply an unsatisfied appetite for delightful or exotic foods. Visits poor people in four areas: Spanish Americans in Texas, sharecroppers in Virginia, Navajo Indians in Arizona, and Negroes in Alabama.

6. Kentucky Pioneers B&W 11min 16mm
Follows two pioneer families along the difficult and dangerous Wilderness Road to the Kentucky frontier fort at Harrold's Station. Describes the hardships encountered in establishing a new home in the wilderness and recalls the courage and faith that helped overcome these hardships. Reenacts such representative activities as weaving, soap-making, cooking, candle-making, carpentry, cabin construction, schooling, and square dancing.

7. Kentucky Pioneers Color 26min 16mm
Presents the dangers and hardships encountered by a pioneer family settling in new territory as well as the sacrifices they had to make. Describes cooperation within and among families. Shows an Indian raid, a cabin being built, religious observations, and community gatherings.

8. Leaving Home Blues Color 51min 16mm
Interviews various high school students, parents, school administrators, and farmers to examine the characteristics and problems of rural migration to urban areas, focusing on North Carolina, Nebraska, and Texas. Emphasizes that the lack of employment opportunities in rural communities forces high school students to leave the area after graduation and stresses that the young people neither want to leave home and family nor have the needed skills to work in urban areas.

9. Preventing Coal Pneumoconiosis Through Engineering Controls Color 20min 16mm
Discusses the 1969 Coal Health and Safety Act and examines the research the United States Bureau of Mines is undertaking to try to control coal pneumoconiosis. Points out that this disease is the "killer of coal miners" and shows how tiny particles of coal collects in miners' lungs to prevent proper breathing.

10. The Ravaged Earth Color 24min 16mm
Utilizes interviews with Stewart Udall to point out the dangers and senselessness of strip mining—environmental waste, health damage, and property damage. Places the blame on man's irresponsibility, the inadequacy of regulatory legislation, and the power of the mining companies. Shows scenes of Appalachian land that has been permanently destroyed.

11. TVA and the Nation Color 20min 16mm
Portrays the development of the Tennessee Valley and describes the benefits accruing to the people of this valley and the entire nation from TVA. Conditions in the valley before TVA are pictured and the actions needed to raise the area's economy to that of the other regions of the nation are described. The various changes that took place in the valley are enumerated in detail.

United Artists

1. The Night of the Hunter B&W 90min 1955
A film about a psychopathic backwoods preacher in West Virginia who marries the widow of a bank robber in order to discover where the robber had hidden $10,000. Since the robber has told no one but his two small children, ages four and nine, where the money is, his widow is no help to the clerical lunatic. He murders her and then persecutes the children until he drives them forth into the world. The movie depicts the children's nightmarish flight. It is based on the novel by Davis Grubb, was directed by Charles Laughton and stars Robert Mitchum, Shelly Winters and Miss Lillian Gish.

11. Hazel Dickens Sings B&W 30min
One of the mountain's fine musicians sings some of her well-known songs and hymns.

12. The Hyder Mine Disaster B&W 20min
The famous explosion at the Hyder Mine of the Finley Coal Company killed all but one man—A.T. Collins. He talks of the explosion, how he survived it, and then makes a brief and moving statement about life in the mines.

13. I would Have Gone Back B&W 30min
Thousands of young men face charges of desertion from military service. The reasons stem as often from the complexities of mountain people as they do from the complexities of military processes. Eddie Caudhill of Ft. Gay, West Virginia, tells of his own all too familiar journey from an E-5 wounded purple heart veteran of Vietnam to a deserter facing charges by the Army after confusion over medical treatment and red tape.

14. International Special Olympic Games B&W 20min
A delegation from Southwest Virginia is featured at the Fourth International Special Olympic Games on the campus of Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant, Michigan. The participants representing all fifty states and eight foreign countries are all mentally impaired and some are also physically handicapped. The games, which are sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., Foundation, include swimming, track and field events, gymnastics, wheel chair events, and bowling. Interviews with Susan St. James and Tom Lucas point out the spirit and enthusiasm of hundreds of volunteer celebrities from around the world.

15. In These Hills B&W 30min
A brief view of mountain people and issues.

16. James Dickey—Readings B&W 30min
The noted author-poet reads some of his work and speaks during an appearance at the Virginia Highlands Festival in Abingdon, Virginia.

21. A Mountain Has No Seed B&W 27min
A farmer of the Cumberland Mountains in Tennessee gives a statement about strip-mining and the destruction it has wrought.

22. Movin' on to Washington B&W 32min 1975
Broadside TV went to Washington, D.C., with 3,000 coal miners and 700 trucks from Wise, Virginia, in protest of strip mining legislation that would establish more stringent requirements for reclamation.

23. The New America Color 25min 1974
Doug Anderson and Dan McCrimmon, poets traveling with Artrain, spend some time in the Tri-Cities area of Tennessee conducting workshops in the writing of poetry. This tape shows them picking the guitar, singing and reading their own poetry as they meet with young people and help them with writing their own poetry.

24. Nimrod, Sarah and Jack B&W 30min
A fine informal collection of mountain music old and new.

25. Strip Mining in Germany B&W 30min
This tape shows strip mining and reclamation practices in Germany. Included are interviews with local people and strip miners (English dubbed over). This is an old copy with somewhat unstable edits but important content.

26. To Raise the Dead and Bury the Living—Strip Mining B&W 60min
This tape deals with the problem of strip mining in the mountains as told by the people of the mountains. Scenes of stripping and the words of mountain residents are mixed with the testimony taped from the People's Trial on Strip Mining held in Wise, Virginia. Some of the people on the tape are Uncle Dan Gibson, Bessie Smith, Arden Franklin, Warren Wright, Mark Shepard, and excerpts from a meeting with mountain people and TVA staff on the problem of stripping and land reclamation.

27. Tobacco Cutting B&W 30min
C. L. Perkins of Washington County, Tennessee, talks about the growth of tobacco, what to look for when it is ready to cut. He demonstrates cutting and shows how to hang tobacco for the curing process.

28. Tour of Historic Jonesboro B&W 53min 1974
Paul Fink, local historian, conducts a tour of Jonesboro, former capital of the lost state of Franklin and oldest town in Tennessee. He speaks of the architecture and historical significance of various public buildings, homes and churches.

29. Which Side Are You On? B&W 30min
Florence and Dan Reese fought to unionize the coal fields in the 1930's. They talk of their experiences, and Florence sings some of her own songs, including the famous "Which Side Are You On?" which she wrote to explain the union struggle.

30. The Wobblies B&W 60min
Utah Phillips, singer and member of the still active IWW, proves that neither Wobblies nor a Joe Hill song can ever die and talks of IWW history between songs.

II. SAVES Tapes
(Southern Appalachian Video Ethnography Series):

This series of videotapes includes documentaries dealing with various aspects of Southern mountain culture. Code numbers are given for those that have been catalogued by the system of the Human Relations Area Files. These tapes are available through Broadside TV.

1. Apple Butter Making (NN5/252/1) B&W 18 min 1975
Apple butter making is a traditional food preservation activity in the Southern Appalachians during the fall. This tape shows the process from the peeling of the apples to the canning of the finished product. The individuals shown are family members and neighbors of Phyllis Scalf, the videomaker.

2. Blue Ridge Folklife B&W 1975 50min
This event features old-time string bands and blues from the Piedmont and mountain sections of Virginia. Among the musicians participating were Uncle Homer Walker of Narrows, Virginia, and Daniel Womack, a blues-guitarist from the Virginia mountains. Uncle Homer's performance on the banjo is a rare example of traditional black banjo playing.

3. Broom-Maker (NN5/391/1) B&W 30 min 1974
This videotape of John Sizemore, a traditional mountain broom-maker, was recorded at an annual community festival held near Greeneville, Greene County, Tennessee. Aside from providing a clear view of the steps involved in the assembly of a short-handled mountain broom, John Sizemore's lively conversational style adds to the appeal of this tape.

4. Dreadful Memories (NN5/468/1) B&W 32min 1972
Sara Gunning and Tilman Caudle recount songs and stories of the struggle for unionization in the Harlan coal mines during the 1930's.

5. Ernest East (NN5/533/1) B&W 33min 1974
During the summer months, fiddle contests are held at many towns in the Blue Ridge counties of Virginia and North Carolina in the Southern Appalachians. One string band that has taken more than its share of prizes is headed up by Ernest East, a mill worker and fiddler from Pine Ridge, Surry County, North Carolina.

6. Fiddlin' Powers Family (NN5/533/4) B&W 58min 1974
Fiddlin' Powers and family, a mountain string band from Dungannon, Scott County, Virginia, were among the first Southern Appalachian folk musicians to make commercial recordings in the 1920's. On this tape, three of Fiddlin' Powers' daughters and a son-in-law perform on mandolin, guitar, banjo-guitar and autoharp, and discuss their family's musical tradition and instrumental styles with interviewer, George Reynolds.

7. Frank Duff, Farrier (NN5/326/1) B&W 30min 1973
Aside from illustrating the complete process of shoeing a horse, this tape also provides insight into a traditional craft that has survived in modern times as an adjunct to a popular form of recreation, horseback riding.

8. Ghost Stories—Kathryn Tucker Windham (NN1/538/1) B&W 20min 1974
Kathryn Tucker Windham of Selma, Alabama, is a former newspaper woman and author of several children's books dealing with Deep South ghost lore. Included are several short tales: "The Waverly Ghost," Waverly, Mississippi, "The Jumbo (Alabama) Ghost Light," and "The Ghost Collie."

9. Grandpa Jones at the A. P. Carter Store (NN5/545/2) B&W 50min 1975
The veteran country music performer, Grandpa Jones, his wife, Ramona, and their son, Mark, along with a young neighbor, Larry Lowe, perform before an enthusiastic audience at a community music center established by Janette Carter Kelly, daughter of Sarah and the late A. P. Carter. Along with songs, instrumental numbers and comedy routines, Grandpa performs a "bell dance" that indicates the early ties between professional country music and vaudeville. Members of the audience step-dance during instrumentals.

10. Home Crafts Day (NN5/545/1) B&W 25min 1974
Old-Timers' celebrations and crafts festivals are held in many Southern Appalachian communities, especially during the autumn, and they serve as a focal point for people interested in traditional music, dancing, crafts and subsistence techniques. This tape includes a variety of musical genres, ranging from folk revival topical songs to bluegrass and old-time banjo picking; clog dancing; demonstrations of apple cider pressing and sled-making; also interviews with a weaver and a corn shuck doll maker.

11. Instrument Maker (NN5/534/1) B&W 30min 1973
Mr. Blaine Green of Washington County, Tennessee is an old time fiddler and self-taught instrument maker who has produced a number of fiddles, guitars, and dulcimers. This tape includes discussion and exhibition of Mr. Green's instruments, along with several performances with local musicians.

12. Marshall Ward (NN5/538/1) B&W 53min 1973
Marshall Ward is a retired school teacher who is able to trace the storytelling tradition in his mountain family back to his great-grandparents' generation. Marshall Ward tells a Jack tale, a children's tale with a startling ending, a ghost tale and an "Irishman" or numbskull tale. He also provides information concerning his family background and his career as a storyteller.

13. Meadows of Dan Folk Festival (NN5/545/1) B&W 34 min 1974
This tape features the highlights of a folk festival sponsored by the Ruritan Club, at the Meadows of Dan School. Among the performers are Eunice McAlexander, a ballad singer from Meadows of Dan, Virginia, and Taylor and Stella Kimble from Laurel Fork, Virginia, who appear on the SAVES tape "Taylor and Stella Kimble."

14. Mike Seeger at the A. P. Carter Store B&W 50min 1976
Mike Seeger, brother of Pete Seeger, has a long standing reputation in old-time music. A former member of the New Lost City Ramblers, he is now traveling to universities and colleges and giving other performances like the one at the A. P. Carter Store. During these performances Mike shows the variety of instruments and styles that make up old-time music and also the humor that keeps the music alive.

15. The Morris Brothers at the A. P. Carter Store (NN5/545/5) B&W 50min 1975
Dave and John Morris of Ivydale, West Virginia, have been actively promoting mountain music as performers and festival organizers during the past decade. At a recent appearance at Janette Carter Kelly's community music center, they presented a lively program of traditional and modern songs, and several fiddle tunes which drew members of the audience out onto the floor to step-dance.

16. Mountain Weaver (NN5/286/1) B&W 28min 1973
Taft Greer of Mountain City, Johnson County, Tennessee, is a weaver of traditional mountain coverlets whose grandmother was mentioned in Allen H. Eaton's Handicrafts of the Southern Highlands. On this tape, he discusses and exhibits various materials involved in the steps leading up to setting up the loom, and also demonstrates the actual weaving process.

17. News from Pigeon Roost: Harvey Miller (NN5/18/2) B&W 52min 1975
Harvey J. Miller is a self-taught writer and sympathetic observer of life in the mountains of western North Carolina. Recently Eliot Wigginton compiled the best of Miller's articles in a special issue of Foxfire magazine. This tape, apart from its value as a general introduction to mountain folk culture, can be fruitfully employed in anthropology and folklore courses to illustrate the interaction between interviewer and informant in a field situation.

18. Nimrod Workman (NN5/18/1) B&W 49min 1973
Nimrod Workman is a 79 year old former coal miner from Mingo County, West Virginia, and one of the most remarkable performers in the Southern Appalachian region. In addition to performing traditional songs and ballads, he is also a song writer who adapts old and modern tunes to convey his own ideas and feelings about life in the mountains. In this tape he moves from anecdotes to songs and back again without any sense of self-consciousness or artificiality. Topics covered include coal-mining, the union struggle, black lung, herb gathering and the Hatfield-McCoy feud.

19. Parking Lot Pickin' and Fiddlin' Around B&W 55min 1975
Most work on fiddlers' conventions deals with the competition aspects that occur onstage and only briefly deals with the activities in campsites and parking lots. This tape deals solely with the spontaneous music and people that make up the heart of the large scale conventions.

20. Ralph Stanley Memorial Blue Grass Festival (NN5/545/3a-h) B&W 1974
In 1970, Ralph Stanley established an annual festival at his family's homestead in southwestern Virginia, dedicated to the memory of his late brother and singing partner, Carter. The fourth annual festival included many outstanding figures in the bluegrass field. Included in this series of tapes are:
Ralph Stanley (NN5/545/3a)
Bill Monroe (NN5/545/3b)
Don Reno & Bill Harrell (NN5/545/3c)
Country Gentlemen/Bill Clifton (NN5/545/3d)
Goins Brothers with Red Rector/James Monroe/Blue Denim (NN5/545/3e)
Bluegrass Alliance/Jones Brothers (NN5/545/3f)
Bluegrass Tarheels/Al Wood/Sloane Family/McClain Family (NN5/545/eg)
Marshall Dutton and the Good Timers/Lee Allen/Glenn Roberts and the Rolling Firestones (NN5/545/3h)

21. Renfro Valley (NN5/545/4) B&W 1974
In 1974, Mac Wiseman's bluegrass festival at Renfro Valley, Kentucky, was combined with a fiddle contest supported by prominent traditionalists in the commercial country music field and the Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddlers Association. Mike Seeger was called upon to lead workshops including a number of well known early country music performers. Tapes in this series include:
Mike Seeger and Lonnie Glosson (NN5/545/4a)
Cliff Carlisle/Henry Gilbert (NN5/545/4b)
Chubby Wise and Mac Wiseman (NN5/545/4c)
Country Gentlemen (NN5/545/4d)
Bluegrass Drifters/Outdoor Plumbing Company (NN5/545/4e)

22. Roosevelt Presnell/Herb Gatherer B&W 55min 1975
Roosevelt Presnell is a farmer from Beech Creek, North Carolina, who has gathered, bought and sold herbs for over fifty years. This video tape traces Mr. Presnell's life history and focuses on his vast knowledge of herbs and their gathering. The tape demonstrates the gathering of herbs in the field and their preparation for sale and use. Some herbs featured are black cohash, spignet and ginseng.

23. Taft Greer: Weaving the Wall of Jericho B&W 50min 1975
This tape deals with the life of Taft Greer and his weaving. Besides giving his life history, it explains the whole process of dying wool from walnuts and herbs to weaving it into a bedspread to selling the finished product. Some of Taft's work is on exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute and his reputation is nationwide.

24. Taylor and Stella Kimble (NN5/533/3) B&W 32min 1974
Taylor and Stella Kimble of Laurel Fork in Carroll County, Virginia, were both born into music-loving families in 1892. Like many other old-time musicians, Taylor and Stella gave up their music for many years, but took it up again during the nation-wide revival of traditional string band and fiddle music that began to emerge in the early sixties. Since then, they have made numerous appearances at fiddle contests and folk festivals in Virginia and North Carolina.

25. "They Shall Take up Serpents" (NN5/787/788/1a) B&W 49min Fire and Serpent Handlers (NN5/787/788/1b) B&W 53min 1973
The handling of poisonous serpents is one of the most spectacular and controversial forms of religious expression to be found in the Pentecostal Churches of the Southern mountains. In 1973, the deaths of several members of the Church of God in Jesus' Name during its services brought about a confrontation with Tennessee courts and law enforcement agencies, and an influx of network newspeople gained the church instant national notoriety. The first tape in this series includes an interview with the assistant preacher of the church who provides a detailed insider's view of its belief system, segments of actual services, and a brief interview with a judge involved with the case. The second tape begins with further excerpts from services, including fire handling and concludes with a panel discussion with several ministers in Bluff City, Tennessee.

26. Third Annual Jonesboro Storytelling Festival B&W 1975
The Jonesboro Storytelling festival of 1975 features veteran storyteller Ray Hicks of Sugar Grove, North Carolina, and Doc McConnell of Rogersville, Tennessee. In addition to the traditional Jack tales, Ray tells of his first encounter with a witch, and Doc discusses various aspects of traditional mountain life.

27. Tommy Jarrell (NN5/533/2) B&W 32min 1974
Tommy Jarrell who was born about the turn of this century in Round Peak, North Carolina, was influenced by his father, Ben Jarrell, one of the finest fiddlers in the Blue Ridge Area, and a master claw-hammer banjo player, Charlie Lowe. Although this tape is primarily devoted to Tommy's fiddling, he is also a vigorous singer.
